Endless Pleats

With their straight-cut lines, the stemmed glasses from the Macassar collection transport us to a universe of Art Deco haute couture. The glasses exude sophistication with a flowing pleat, running from their elegant stem to their very top, and unity with symmetric lines. The shapes of the glasses in the unique sparkle of crystal glass celebrate freedom of style and the precious detailing of angled corners blended with curves. In the style of a contemporary dress designer revisiting the timeless conventions of fashion, these limpid geometric sculptures break away from tradition to embolden your table.

Perfectly Proportioned

The stemmed glasses from the Amarante collection successfully combine the fundamental proportions of architecture and the refined seduction of jewellery craftsmanship. The stem, faceted like a polygonal column, is topped with a stylised jewelled stud sporting descending rings, featuring the simplicity of the Art Deco style and the symmetry of its lines. The sensuality of the jewel and the pure sound of the crystal glass further enhance the pleasure of tasting in these tulip-shaped glasses.

Sculptured Light

The Rendez-Vous collection draws its intense sparkle from the depth and the abundance of the shimmering vertical facets as well as the motion of the mouldings covering the glasses. Spectacularly cut to sculpt light, they display the simplicity of prominent symmetrical lines, structured like a cut diamond as if part of a precious bracelet.

Mythe Vase

Luminous pieces of art

A myriad of sparkles surge from the vases, dancing wherever the light takes them, "each time never quite the same nor completely different" as would say the great French poet Paul Verlaine. Shifting reflections from the geometric facets which form the sides, fanciful visual perception and impressive density: these crystalline sculptures ricochet delicate and enchanting rays of sunlight
